

Foot Locker Foundation Unites Footwear and Athletic Industries for “Hooping For A Brighter Future”

A First-of-its-Kind Online Fundraising Event Raising More than $750,000 for Deserving Students Across the Country

New York, New York – January 19, 2021 – In a star-studded effort to support the United Negro College Fund (UNCF) and the Foot Locker Scholar Athletes program, the Foot Locker Foundation took to the court – virtually – for “Hooping for a Brighter Future.” A first-of-its-kind online fundraising event hosted by Christian Crosby, basketball personality and founder of LiveLifeNice, the basketball-themed challenge called upon some of the world’s best players (and basketball fans) to take one shot and raise funds for scholars nationwide.

“This year, we knew we couldn’t bring everyone together for our traditional On Our Feet gala, but it was important to us to be able to make a difference and continue to raise money for our students,” said Richard Johnson, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Foot Locker, Inc. “So, we got creative and challenged our donors to a shoot-out. With every donation, we provided one shot by (a mystery player) to build a brighter future for these outstanding students. It’s a true celebration of the significant contributions and impact we are making together, particularly during these challenging times.”

The all-star event included an impressive lineup of well-known basketball pros including current season standouts Sue Bird, Buddy Hield, and Danilo Gallinari, and Hall of Famers Walt Clyde Frazier and John Starks. Other professional athletes and celebrities also took to the court including Coco Gauff, American tennis player, Steve Nash, professional basketball coach and Hall of Famer, Beatrice Domond, professional skateboarder, and Jesse Jones AKA “Filayyyy,” social media personality.

The event also spotlighted Alexandra Martinez, a Queens native and Foot Locker Scholar Athlete scholarship recipient, on what the fund has meant to her. Now studying Global Affairs at Long Island University Global, Alexandra credits the scholarship for helping her pursue her dreams and education.

“Foot Locker made it possible to pursue my dreams in school, my education, and expand my knowledge. They actualized everything that I put forward into the world and I can’t thank them enough.”

In addition, athletic footwear and apparel companies including Nike and Jordan “showed up” as the premiere “Hall of Fame” sponsor, joined by top donors New Balance, Converse, adidas, Vans, Puma, UGG, ASICS, Champion, Converse, Crocs, FILA, Reebok, Timberland, and Under Armour, to name a few, who also lent their support to this important cause. As a result of their generous contributions, the virtual event raised more than $750,000, supporting the Foundation’s mission to empower youth through its educational initiatives.
